GSS - GRANT STARTER SCHOOL

THE VALUE OF INTERDISCIPLINARITY IN GRANT WRITING

PROGRAM DESCRIPTION

Writing a proposal for research funding is a very specific skill. The “Starting a Grant proposal” School of the University of Milano-Bicocca offers the opportunity to Ph.D. students and early-stage researchers to explore how to write a proposal that stands out among the others.

Four days to work up on your writing and on project applications with colleagues from different backgrounds and disciplines.

The Winter School will be divided into sets of lessons and activities following a hands-on approach on project writing. Activities and lectures will cover all the steps necessary to convey a successful grant proposal, from conceptualization to writing. The interdisciplinary spirit of the School is aimed at enhancing cooperation among researchers from different fields of research: a tremendous opportunity to create a network of researchers, share knowledge and widen each other’s perspective on how to approach grant writing. Bicocca Starting Grants projects are funded by the University of Milano-Bicocca and by bringing together researchers from seven different Departments proves that interdisciplinarity works!

The course is offered in dual mode, and all contents and activities will be available simultaneously online (webex) and face-to-face.

PREREQUISITES

PhD students and early career researchers. People from different research fields are welcome. Gender balance will be taken into account.
